

Where is the Camping Centre

The centre is located in the small village of Dyffryn Ardudwy, centred 5 miles equally North of Barmouth and South of Harlech in the county of Gwynedd (Merioneth) Mid-Wales on the A496 road. The site is situated between the coast road and the sea. The sea is visible from the site and is reached by a ten minute walk down a lane across the 'Morfa' (a flat stretch of sandy land, ending in sand dunes). There is an excellent beach and safe bathing.

How to Get There

The most often used method is by road. The centre is 2 minutes drive from the main road that runs through the village. Take the turning towards the railway station, cross over the railway crossing, pass the Cadwgan Inn down the lane, and the centre is on the right hand side.

Dyffryn Ardudwy station adjoins the Centre and is on the Cambrian Coast line between Pwllheli & Machynlleth, with connections to Shrewsbury, the West Midlands and London.
